It is a very fast read because you want to know what the poor hubby has done to spur on another story yet a drawback, because the laughing finally stops when you finish! Loved it!0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Another Great Book!By Sue-EllenOnce again Diana Estill writes a book that had me laughing and smiling from beginning to end! Diana manages to turn real life events and stories into the best books ever! I am just sad when they end and I am always wanting more!

In her latest collection of humor essays, award-winning author Diana Estill delivers twisted tales of past and present. Having grown up with an absent-minded father and a mother who refused to wearbut nevertheless tried to sell beauty products, Estill drolly recalls her childhood angst and confusion. The authors keen observations about life and family straddle the line between satire and memoir, consistently hitting the comedic bulls eye. Besides poking fun at herself and her kin, Estill unleashes tongue-in-cheek commentary on subjects such as populating Mars, finding the fun in funerals, cloning Neanderthals, and store gun policies. (If youre feeling unsafe enough to pack a shotgun for your trip to purchase pork rinds, then maybe you ought to stay home and shoot your own snacks.) Travelogues about crossing the pond (Looking for the Loo in London) and commissioning a hot air balloon to fly across a desert (Fatal Attractions) offer witty vacation advice. If you enjoy a good laugh, this book is one to add to your collection. Included in these 24 essays: An Apple a Day Teaches Nothing Cosmetically Confused Do These Jeans Make My Butt Look Perky? Fifty Nightshades of Grey Finding the Fun in Funerals Legally Stupid Life in Dads Laboratory Psycho Hotline Separation of Church and Fate and more

"Witty and snarky.... A relatable, if uneven collection, that depicts life in fluid, chatty prose." -- Kirkus sAbout the AuthorDiana Estill is the author of five humor books, one novel, and a collection of short stories. Two of her books have been ForeWord Book of the Year finalists. Her second book, Deedee Divine's Totally Skewed Guide to Life, won the International Book Awards, humor category. Diana grew up in Texas, where she worked previously as a failed Dairy Queen waitress, disgruntled corporate secretary, and starving humor columnist.
